Rating: hold | target price: PLN 465.74 | current price: PLN 478.00

Kęty said at today's earnings call that it had received large new bookings for the fourth quarter of 2020. The Company is experiencing pressure on profits due to high prices of raw materials and competitor pricing. The pandemic has not had a disruptive impact on business so far except for a few infections among employees. Kęty stands by its FY2020 earnings guidance, which it says is conservative.

- Third-quarter results were impacted positively by the zloty's depreciation versus the euro, and negatively by rising costs of raw materials. The pandemic has not disrupted regular business, and the Company is reviving investments. There are pricing pressures from competitors and customers.
- Amid covid-induced uncertainty, orders right now tend to have shorter deadlines.
- 2020 Q3 EBITDA in the Packaging segment grew on higher sales, including exports, which increased at a faster rate (+23% y/y) than domestic bookings (+18% y/y). Kęty was able to maintain high capacity rates in Q3 at 88% despite price pressures (prices in Q3 fell relative to Q2 even as materials costs rose). Margins held at high levels as well in Q3 thanks to earlier materials stockpiling. Competitive pressures in the European packaging market may increase in Q4 with the launch of a new 50kt BOPP facility.

- In Aluminum Extrusions, sales in Q3 reached a record level after increasing 7% from the same period a year earlier. Demand from the building industry never went away, and orders from the auto industry and the transport sector picked up noticeably in Q3 compared to lockdown months. There was big improvement in sales by foreign divisions in Ukraine and Slovenia. At the same time, Kęty successfully added new global customers to its customer base in the third quarter.
- Sales of aluminum systems increased at a faster rate in Poland (+10% y/y) than abroad (+8% y/y) in Q3 2020. Downward price pressure is observed across the board, but orders keep coming in.
- Kęty is currently working on an updated strategy plan which it expects to unveil in late 2020/early 2021.
- The Company has reiterated its FY2020 guidance, which takes into account possible complications in Q4 from the pandemic that, at this time, show low odds of materializing.

Strong and weak points of valuation methods used in recommendations:

DCF – acknowledged as the most methodologically correct method of valuation; it consists in discounting financial flows generated by a company; its weak point is the significant susceptibility to a change of forecast assumptions in the model.

Relative – based on a comparison of valuation multipliers of companies from a given sector; simple in construction, reflects the current state of the market better than DCF; weak points include substantial variability (fluctuations together with market indices) as well as difficulty in the selection of the group of comparable companies.

Economic profits – discounting of future economic profits; the weak point is high sensitivity to changes in the assumptions made in the valuation model.

Discounted Dividends (DDM) – discounting of future dividends; the weak point is high sensitivity to changes in the assumptions as to future dividends made in the valuation model.

NAV – valuation based on equity value, one of the most frequently used method in case of developing companies; the weak point of the method is that it does not factor in future changes in revenue/profits of a company.
